DESCRIPTION:	Coworth Park is a 70-room luxury country house hotel and spa set in 240 acres of picturesque Berkshire parkland just 45 minutes from central London and 20 minutes from Heathrow airport. Its location, unrivalled in the UK for the ease and convenience of its transport links, is also enhanced by its own helipad. The estate includes an award-winning luxury Spa with indoor pool and three restaurants including the Spatisserie, relaxed dining in The Barn and one Michelin starred dining at Restaurant Coworth Park, serving a modern British menu. It is the only UK hotel to feature its own polo fields, which are managed by Guards Polo Club, offering a full programme of polo tournaments. The hotel also offers an exceptional equestrian centre; current facilities include stabling for 30 horses together with self-contained accommodation for grooms.

DÉCOR:

Dorchester Collection's vision for Coworth Park was to create the finest country house hotel and spa in the UK with a design and décor that recognised Coworth's origins and yet avoided the predictable country house clichés. Inspiration was taken from modern day family run private English country estate properties. Residential specialist interior designers, Fox Linton Associates, were responsible for realizing this vision.

The design approach is one of incredible comfort and simple beauty, creating a relaxed and informal environment that encourages intimacy and privacy. Furnishings, furniture and art are mostly British-made, acknowledging a British tradition of craftsmanship. Throughout the hotel, the flooring is of English smoked oak adorned with beautiful bespoke rugs. Textiles include wool, cashmere, mohair and linen. Natural pigments and dusky colours predominate to instil a character to the hotel that is undeniably English – subtle, understated and elegant.

GUEST ROOMS AND SUITES:

Of the total 70 guest bedrooms, 30 suites and rooms are located in the Mansion House, each with extensive views through high Georgian windows across gardens and parkland. No two rooms are alike and furnishings and furniture are mostly bespoke and contemporary. Some rooms have ornate four-poster beds that take the form of trees whilst others have upholstered beds. Throughout, the colour scheme is natural and earthy, derived from the landscape outside, with varying highlights of oranges and blues. Each bathroom features its own free-standing copper bath.

There are a further 40 suites and bedrooms, including some duplexes in the converted stables and cottages, just a short walk from the Mansion House. Named after Derby winners, they have a more equestrian feel, matching the stables' former use and their agricultural architecture. The furnishings and furniture are crisp and modern, utilising natural textiles, leather and contemporary art.

The jewel in the crown of Coworth Park's 21 suites is The Dower House. This picturesque, private three-bedroom house built in 1775 has its own dining room, lounge, kitchen, snug and a secluded garden with its own stream running through it that is home to Coworth Park's family of swans. The interior is decorated by Fox Linton Associates much as a private client might envisage their own English country home.

Within the Mansion House there are 6 suites including the Arbuthnot, Shepheard, Stanley, Weston and Derby suites which are named after previous owners. There are a further 3 suites in the converted Stables and 6 in the converted Cottages. Suites in the Stables are named after horses owned by Lord Derby which won the St Leger Stakes (Fairway, Keysoe and Swynford) which were established in 1776 and are the oldest of Britain's five classic races. The race is the last and longest of the five to be run and takes place in September.

'The Book of Idle Pleasures' by Tom Hodgkinson is placed in all rooms for guests to enjoy.

RESTAURANTS: Under the culinary guidance of executive chef Adam Smith, Coworth Park offers a choice of exceptional dining options including Michelin Star awarded Restaurant Coworth Park. Three of the hotels gathering spots are located within the Mansion House, with stunning views through French doors across the rose terrace and croquet lawn to the meadow and rolling estate grounds beyond. Restaurant Coworth Park showcases a modern presentation of classic British flavour combinations and a commitment to quality ingredients and depth of flavour. In 2018 and 2019, Michelin Guide UK awarded executive chef Adam Smith a Michelin star for Restaurant Coworth Park. Service is provided with relaxed elegance in a contemporary elegant setting. The Bar at Coworth Park offers a finely crafted and diverse cocktail list whilst the Drawing Room is popular for its quintessentially English afternoon tea and light meals and was awarded Best Traditional Afternoon Tea in 2018. For relaxed rustic dining guests can choose The Barn at Coworth Park located a short stroll from the Mansion House, adjacent to the converted stables and cottages. ENVIRONMENTAL: Coworth Park is one of the UK's most environmentally-friendly hotels through the incorporation of renewable and low energy technologies. The hotel aims to reduce total carbon dioxide emissions by at least 50% thanks to radically different approaches to heating, cooling and lighting.

Key features include:

- The construction of its own underground energy centre incorporating a Bio Mass Heating Plant
- It is the only hotel in the UK to grow its own fuel with the cultivation of willow on the estate used in the Bio Mass Heating Plant
- To assist in cooling the hotel a system of underground pipes has been installed. Known as 'slinkys' they are buried in 100x150 metres of meadowland. Water is first passed through a chiller and then constantly circulated via these slinkys and then via energy efficient water chillers to provide chilled water for the air-conditioning process
- Purcell Miller Tritton, a leading architectural practice with a vision to create inspiring and enduring architecture, were the architects for The Spa at Coworth Park.
- EPR Architects, known for agile architectural practice, were the overall project architects

HISTORY: Dating from 1776 Coworth Park was originally owned by land owner and prosperous East India merchant, William Shepheard. Throughout the generations the estate has passed through the hands of a long list of Lords and Ladies including the Earl of Derby who owned the estate for the early half of the 19th century. Coworth Park first became associated with polo in the mid 1980s when the owner of Selfridges and Fortnum and Mason, Galen Weston, purchased the estate and built its first polo ground and stables. In March 2001, a further polo ground and practice field had been added, and the estate was set up as a luxurious residential estate with polo facilities aimed at the private and leisure international markets. In 2008 Dorchester Collection started work to renovate the main Georgian manor house and create a luxury country house hotel estate and spa. Coworth Park opened as Dorchester Collection's eighth property in September 2010.
