The Meurice's Bar 228 – a great place to meet up for an evening out in Paris!

This winter, Le Meurice's legendary Bar 228 unveils its new menu. Besides the cocktails of course, guests will be able to enjoy dishes to share, inviting them on a journey to the South of France for a sunny break.

An emblematic corner of Le Meurice, the Bar 228 is the ideal address for spending an evening out in Paris, whether it's for an afterwork drink with colleagues, get-togethers with friends or to celebrate a family event. The chef Amaury Bouhours has imagined a sun-drenched antipasti menu inspired by typical dishes from the South of France – from the Med to the Basque Country. He works with produce straight from the farm to the fork, respecting their seasonality. Guests will thus be able to share Grilled artichokes, confit lemon and aioli, Gourd fritters / tarragon yoghurt, not to mention Fall Barabjuan for a convivial moment together.

To accompany these delicious dishes, our barmen propose traditional cocktails from the bar such as the sparkling Le 228 (champagne, pear, litchi, raspberry), the very Italian Bellini (champagne, peach purée) or the Green Mary (vodka, green pepper, green tomato, cucumber) – a variation putting a special twist on the famous Bloody Mary. All masters of mixology and extremely passionate about their art, our barmen also have fun personalising their cocktails to satisfy the desires and whims of the guests or for special events.

Lastly – and there's no need to tell our regulars about this – the atmosphere that reigns in the Bar 228 is unique. Deep leather armchairs, dark wood panelling and gigantic frescoes all blend in harmoniously with the modern touches of the backlit Carrara marble bar imagined by the designer Philippe Starck. Although our guests can also enjoy lunch at the bar with our signature dishes such as the Salade 228 or the Burger 228 garnished with chips, it's at aperitif time that the decor of this English-style bar really springs to life, with the gentle murmur of conversation accompanied by soothing jazz in the background.
