SINGLE MALT WHISKY

LOWLANDS

Fondly nicknamed the 'Lowland Ladies', the single malt distilleries of the Lowlands region are known for gentle, floral whiskies, which are normally triple distilled. Proudly retaining the old ways of traditional distillation, Auchentoshan is perhaps one of the most well-known, producing easy-drinking whisky with very malty, grassy characteristics.

IRISH

Recognised as the original home of whiskey distillation – though hotly contested by Scottish producers – Irish whiskies are smooth, fruity and normally triple-distilled for easy drinking. They're unique for their pure pot still whisky, which gives it a distinctive spiciness. Bushmills distillery takes the title for the world's oldest, founded in 1608.

AMERICAN, CANADIAN AND BOURBON

Created with a fermented mash of cereal grain, American whiskey varies from delicately sweet to spicy and full-bodied. Canadian is distinctive for its light, smooth character thanks to its large percentage of corn spirits. Bourbon, derived from the French Bourbon dynasty, is barrel-aged for its signature sweetness.

CALVADOS

One of France's best-loved brandies, Calvados is distilled from cider and produced in lower Normandy, where apple cider is believed to have been produced as early as the 8th century. A combination of sweet, tart and bitter apples are blended to create the perfect balance – sometimes involving over 100 different apple varieties in one Calvados.
