SINGLE MALT WHISKY

LOWLANDS

Fondly nicknamed the ‘Lowland Ladies’, the single malt distilleries of the Lowlands region are known for gentle, floral whiskies, which are normally triple distilled. Proudly retaining the old ways of traditional distillation, Auchentoshan is perhaps one of the most well-known, producing easy-drinking whisky with very malty, grassy characteristics.

|                                |        |
|--------------------------------|--------|

| Auchentoshan 18 yrs            | £26    |
| Auchentoshan 21 yrs            | £32    |

HIGHLANDS

As such a large, diverse region, the Highlands produces single malt that takes on many shapes and forms, ranging from dry to sweet – some with a touch of smoke and peat.

| Macallan 25 yrs                 | £195   |

CAMPBELTOWN

The town of Campbeltown was once home to more than 30 distilleries. Today it is home to just three: Springbank, Glengyle and Glen Scotia. Whiskies from the town tend to have a little peat and salt to them, and are generally medium to full-bodied.

|                   |        |

ISLANDS

Rugged, windswept and barren, the islands of Islay and Skye produce single malt whiskies with strong peaty, maritime aromas, which offer a perfect balance of both sweetness and pungency. The region is home to one of the most well-known distilleries, Highland Park, established in 1798.

IRISH

Recognised as the original home of whiskey distillation – though hotly contested by Scottish producers – Irish whiskies are smooth, fruity and normally triple-distilled for easy drinking. They're unique for their pure pot still whisky, which gives it a distinctive spiciness. Bushmills distillery takes the title for the world's oldest, founded in 1608.

AMERICAN, CANADIAN AND BOURBON

Created with a fermented mash of cereal grain, American whiskey varies from delicately sweet to spicy and full-bodied. Canadian is distinctive for its light, smooth character thanks to its large percentage of corn spirits. Bourbon, derived from the French Bourbon dynasty, is barrel-aged for its signature sweetness.

ARMAGNAC

Armagnac is a distinctive brandy produced in the Armagnac region in south-west France, from a selection of grape varieties. It is traditionally single distilled in an alembic pot still, and this makes for an initially rough spirit which, with age, becomes earthy, robust and full-bodied.

CALVADOS

One of France's best-loved brandies, Calvados is distilled from cider and produced in lower Normandy, where apple cider is believed to have been produced as early as the 8th century. A combination of sweet, tart and bitter apples are blended to create the perfect balance – sometimes involving over 100 different apple varieties in one Calvados.

GRAPPA

A popular digestif, this fragrant Italian brandy is distilled from pomace, which is the skins, pulp, seeds and stems left over after grapes are pressed for winemaking. It can be bottled at once, producing a sharp, clear grappa, or aged in wooden casks to create a darker, more intense flavour.
